UM OFFERS CLASS FOR WILD GAME GOURMETS

MISSOULA —

Worried that you don't know a back strap from an inside loin? Well, Dining Services at The University of Montana is offering a hands-on Wild Game Butchering Class from 5:30 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4, in the Catering Kitchen on the first floor of the University Center.

The class is open to UM students and employees. It's free, but registration is required by calling 243-6325. Participants are advised to wear appropriate clothing and come prepared to do some cutting. Deer, elk, antelope, bear and butchering equipment will be provided.

Experts Mark LoParco and John Belobraidic will take people through topics such as basic field prep, primal cuts and final preparation for proper storage.

In addition, Dining Services already is preparing for the coming Getting Wild With Wild Game Cooking Show on Jan. 16. Tickets costing $10 will be available starting Monday, Dec. 3, at the UM or Adams Center box offices. The cooking show is only open to UM students and employees and usually sells out quickly.

Also, Wild Game Cookbooks are again for sale for $15. They are available at the Dining Services office or by calling 243-6325.
